

Originally Posted Online: April 15, 2011, 12:02 pm

Last Updated: April 15, 2011, 4:04 pm

Quad City Eagles to compete in National Premier Soccer League

Comment on this story

By Chris Steele, chrissteele@qconline.com

The new Quad City Eagles semi-pro soccer team introduced players Kendrick Tyson, Tony Villasenor, Sean Fidlow and head coach Scott Mejia during a press conference Friday morning at the Quad City Botanical Center, Rock Island.

The Quad City Eagles Football Club has joined the National Premier Soccer League and will open its inaugural season May 14 in Madison, Wis., against the Madison 56ers. The NPSL is the 4th tier of soccer in the U.S.

"There has always been a great pool of soccer talent in the Quad-Cities and surrounding areas but few options for players who wanted to take their skills to the next competitive level," General Manager Jeff Varner said in a press release. "This will offer an opportunity for up-and-coming youth players to strive for more competitive soccer, allowing them access to opportunities never before available to them."

The Eagles will scrimmage against the St. Ambrose University men's team at Augustana College Saturday at 6 p.m. The team's first NPSL home game will be May 21 when they host the Chicago Fire.

More photos from this shoot

Photo: Paul Colletti

Players Kendrick Tyson and Sean Fidlow demonstrate their soccer skills during a press conference in Rock Island for the new Quad City Eagles Football Club on Friday morning, April 15, 2011. The Eagles will be part of the National Premier Soccer League and will have their first home match against the Chicago Fire NPSL team May 21.

More photos from this shoot

Photo: Paul Colletti

Head coach Scott Mejia will lead the Quad City Eagles Football Club as they join the National Premier Soccer League starting May 14 against the

Madison 56ers in Wisconsin. Mr. Mejia answered questions during a press conference in Rock Island Friday morning, April 14. The Eagles will have their first home game against the Chicago Fire NPSL team May 21.

Originally Posted Online: April 15, 2011, 12:02 pm

Last Updated: April 15, 2011, 4:04 pm

Quad City Eagles to compete in National Premier Soccer League

Comment on this story

By Chris Steele, chrissteele@qconline.com

The new Quad City Eagles semi-pro soccer team introduced players Kendrick Tyson, Tony Villasenor, Sean Fidlow and head coach Scott Mejia during a press conference Friday morning at the Quad City Botanical Center, Rock Island.

The Quad City Eagles Football Club has joined the National Premier Soccer League and will open its inaugural season May 14 in Madison, Wis., against the Madison 56ers. The NPSL is the 4th tier of soccer in the U.S.

"There has always been a great pool of soccer talent in the Quad-Cities and surrounding areas but few options for players who wanted to take their skills to the next competitive level," General Manager Jeff Varner said in a press release. "This will offer an opportunity for up-and-coming youth players to strive for more competitive soccer, allowing them access to opportunities never before available to them."

The Eagles will scrimmage against the St. Ambrose University men's team at Augustana College Saturday at 6 p.m. The team's first NPSL home game will be May 21 when they host the Chicago Fire.

More photos from this shoot

Photo: Paul Colletti

Players Kendrick Tyson and Sean Fidlow demonstrate their soccer skills during a press conference in Rock Island for the new Quad City Eagles Football Club on Friday morning, April 15, 2011. The Eagles will be part of the National Premier Soccer League and will have their first home match against the Chicago Fire NPSL team May 21.

More photos from this shoot

Photo: Paul Colletti

Head coach Scott Mejia will lead the Quad City Eagles Football Club as they join the National Premier Soccer League starting May 14 against the

Madison 56ers in Wisconsin. Mr. Mejia answered questions during a press conference in Rock Island Friday morning, April 14. The Eagles will have their first home game against the Chicago Fire NPSL team May 21.

Originally Posted Online: April 15, 2011, 12:02 pm

Last Updated: April 15, 2011, 4:04 pm

Quad City Eagles to compete in National Premier Soccer League

Comment on this story

By Chris Steele, chrissteele@qconline.com

The new Quad City Eagles semi-pro soccer team introduced players Kendrick Tyson, Tony Villasenor, Sean Fidlow and head coach Scott Mejia during a press conference Friday morning at the Quad City Botanical Center, Rock Island.

The Quad City Eagles Football Club has joined the National Premier Soccer League and will open its inaugural season May 14 in Madison, Wis., against the Madison 56ers. The NPSL is the 4th tier of soccer in the U.S.

"There has always been a great pool of soccer talent in the Quad-Cities and surrounding areas but few options for players who wanted to take their skills to the next competitive level," General Manager Jeff Varner said in a press release. "This will offer an opportunity for up-and-coming youth players to strive for more competitive soccer, allowing them access to opportunities never before available to them."

The Eagles will scrimmage against the St. Ambrose University men's team at Augustana College Saturday at 6 p.m. The team's first NPSL home game will be May 21 when they host the Chicago Fire.

More photos from this shoot

Photo: Paul Colletti

Players Kendrick Tyson and Sean Fidlow demonstrate their soccer skills during a press conference in Rock Island for the new Quad City Eagles Football Club on Friday morning, April 15, 2011. The Eagles will be part of the National Premier Soccer League and will have their first home match against the Chicago Fire NPSL team May 21.

More photos from this shoot

Photo: Paul Colletti

Head coach Scott Mejia will lead the Quad City Eagles Football Club as they join the National Premier Soccer League starting May 14 against the Madison 56ers in Wisconsin. Mr. Mejia answered questions during a press conference in Rock Island Friday morning, April 14. The Eagles will have their first home game against the Chicago Fire NPSL team May 21.